

John Palmer

CEO and Managing Partner, Sigma Consulting Group, LLC

John Palmer is a global management, innovation, and strategy executive. John also a focus on technical and business management adviser with extensive years of experience in corporations, R&D, advisory firms, and academia. John has served as a key member in the development of the International Space Station Habitat and Laboratory, leading several nano technology experiments with US international partners. John has built new ventures and change initiatives for employers and clients in energy, technology, high tech R&D, telecommunications, aerospace and transportation sectors in 30+ countries. John has completed advanced studies at some of the world leading including Valencia Polytechnic Institute, Stanford University, University of Seville, and Monterey Institute.